Tasting notes

Grown on granite soils situated between Condrieu and Côte Rôtie, La Rosine which owes its name to its former owner, was first made in 1991. For the last couple of years, whole bunch are pressed to add some complexity and freshness. Bramble and cassis fruits on the nose, the palate is smooth with velvety tannins and a lovely peppery tang. A great value for money.

About the producer

Michel Ogier is a relative new comer, selling his crop to Chapoutier and Guigal until the 1980s. His dynamic, young son Stéphane now runs the 2 ½ hectares of vineyards and the wines have been getting steadily better. He produces elegant refined wines which have the capacity, nonetheless to age for many years.
