Tasting notes

A terrific right bank site next to Blanchots and Les Clos which produces powerful and complex wines. Real depth to the fruit, which also shows a little more richness than some of the cooler sites, but there is great energy and verve on the finish with a classic gunflint character. Drink 2012-2018.

About the producer

William Fèvre is one of Chablis's most respected domaines and is credited with putting this region of Chardonnay vines, William began purchasing parcels of the region's Premier and Grand Cru vineyards that had fallen out of fashion. He quickly grew the estate to an impressive 50 hectares and established a fine reputation for his white Burgundy. He retired in 1998 and sold the estate to négociant Bouchard, who installed Didier Séguier as winemaker.
