Tasting notes

This is delightful, easy Chablis. Very pretty, pale lemon gold. This has really good concentration and a lovely texture and weight in the mouth. Bright citrus zest, with a lovely line of minerality and white peachy fruit. The lovely soft acidity keeps everything fresh. Perfect. Drink from release.

About the producer

William Fèvre is one of Chablis's most respected domaines and is credited with putting this region of Chardonnay vines, William began purchasing parcels of the region's Premier and Grand Cru vineyards that had fallen out of fashion. He quickly grew the estate to an impressive 50 hectares and established a fine reputation for his white Burgundy. He retired in 1998 and sold the estate to négociant Bouchard, who installed Didier Séguier as winemaker.
