Tasting notes

Produced from 89 year old vines, the same age as Michel Lafarge himself, this wine has a fruity bouquet with notes of sweet plums, bright cherries and briary forest fruits. Raspberries and redcurrants on the palate are underscored by lovely freshness. Drink from 2019.

About the producer

Domaine Lafarge dates back to the Revolution and beyond. Over a great many years, this has been the source of some of the most consistently fine wines in the Côte de Beaune and they are never flippant wines for casual, premature acquaintance, a good 10 years for anything at village level or above will be no problem at all. The Lafarges are still committed vignerons who are in the vines every day and who totally believe that the quality of the fruit is the secret to great wine. The vines are treated with great care allowing the nuances of the terroir to speak out. The next twenty years at the Domaine will doubtless pass like the last twenty years, producing understated, classic wines of benchmark quality.
