Tasting notes

Elena Walch's Sauvignon captivates with its deep yellow colour with green hints and aromatic bouquet of ripe gooseberries, papaya and elderberries as well as fine notes of herbs. Juicy acidity, elegant structure and an inviting finish characterize the palate.

About the producer

A successful architect, Elena Walch married into one of the oldest winemaking families in the Alto Adige in the 1980s and her first vintage under her own name was in 1988, when she became the mountain region's first female winemaker. She went on to win acclaim around the world, with daughters Julia and Karoline now working alongside her. The pioneering winemaker owns some of the best vineyards in Italy, including two monopoles: Castel Ringberg in Caldaro and Kastelaz in Tramin, both at 300-400m altitude. These are officially recognised with the prestigious geographical domination 'Vigna'
