Tasting notes

"A toasty style with assertive and elegant wood aromas combined with citrusy pink-grapefruit notes. Medium-bodied, the palate seems more focused on freshness with zesty acidity, tight-knit structure and a savory, vibrant finish. Drink or hold. May 2025"

About the producer

A successful architect, Elena Walch married into one of the oldest winemaking families in the Alto Adige in the 1980s and her first vintage under her own name was in 1988, when she became the mountain region's first female winemaker. She went on to win acclaim around the world, with daughters Julia and Karoline now working alongside her. The pioneering winemaker owns some of the best vineyards in Italy, including two monopoles: Castel Ringberg in Caldaro and Kastelaz in Tramin, both at 300-400m altitude. These are officially recognised with the prestigious geographical domination "Vigna".
